1874—IN PORTRAITURE—1906.

I.

When all the greyish dawn of youth and dreams were merged in the bled, then came the hour for pensive musings. Back to quiet streams. With line and rod. What potent power!

The small, white hand of boyhood's fancy caught Its first impression! Earnest less some taught.

II.

But afterward the noon time came—with tears. The shadows lengthened. All the world appeared A circumscribed event—as other years, Which come and go. The note of slinging bird Had lost its sweetness, and the work and heat Fell as a garment to his very feet.

III.

And now 'tis eve-time, and rest is sweeter far Beside the stream we call the stream of life. If youth and dreams are past, the guiding star Beckons him on to duties calling its strife! The last ideals are found in the sublime. Of manly thought—upon the shore of Time!

IV.

Look not, my friend, upon the bliter past of lost endeavor, Or to the aluring future! Bide the present hour. And view it with a steadfast purpose, trusting ever—that great and soulful power— When childhood, youth, and gentle age, agreed To dwell together—through eternity!

—N. S. COX.

OLD TIMES IN FRANKFORT.

No. IX.

(Crutcher-Tate Melange.)

An amusing episode connected with the days of slavery occurred near Frankfort, prior to the Civil War. Bob Taylor and Dick Tate were charmed with two young ladies, named Vaughan, residing in the county. Determined to give them a serenade, they engaged the services of John N. Crutcher, as vocalist, Ed. Went, as performer on the flute, whilst Walter Lewis was to do the guitar part.

Arrived at the farm home, one bright starlight night, horses were hitched, instruments unsewed, and the group were silently crossing the stiles at the yard fence when the vocalist, Crutcher, noticed some calves lying down in the yard. Quickly grasping the tail of one of these, he gave it a twist. The animal jumped up, bellowing, the others sprang up with a great clatter. The calf ran—Crutcher held on—twelve or fifteen bounds, from under the porches and from behind the house, joined the chase, close behind Crutcher, giving vent to music that seemed appalling. Afraid to let go for fear of the bounds, round and round the yard they went, till, in desperation and nearly exhausted, Crutcher suddenly sprang, panting and weak, on the stiles, face downward.

His companions were indignant, disgusted and proposed to omit the serenade. Crutcher said no, it would not do to stop now, that he was only executing "an involuntary task" and the home people were yet asleep." Yielding, the party approached the gable end of the farm house where two windows, high up, looked down from either side the stone chimney. Crutcher sang sweetly something about the "starry night" and "loves lies dreaming," while flute and guitar solos, and combined pleads were rendered for an hour in great style.

At the conclusion, an old negro man appeared, invited them to come into the dining room and take something. Said it was always the way when young gentlemen serenaded. Accepting the invitation, they found cherry biscuits and other good things in abundance. After eating heartily, Taylor said: "Well, how did the young ladies like the serenade?"

"Oh, bless your soul, honey," replied the old black sot, "they ain't here. Went over to Mars Bedford's dis mornin' early and didn't come back yet." At this apalling revelation, silence fell on the company, disgust unspeakable overspread their features—"all that fine music to a lot of niggers, and them eatin' things they set out!" A sort of funeral procession wended its way back to the city, though the "call-it" performer now and then tried in vain to provoke a smile.

Probably few sensational affairs have lived longer in the memory of the older citizens than the Crutcher-Tate mimic murder and cannon episodes. Touching the first incident, Charley Featherston was doing carpenter work in the back yard of the Mansion House, next door to the now McClure establishment. Dick Tate was a clerk in the postoffice and John Crutcher was clerk for the late Wm. M. Todd, whose store was that now occupied by McClure. Seeing Featherston sawing boards on the opposite side and close to the plank fence between the yards, Tate and Crutcher hatched a murder plan.

The day was hot, Featherston had off coat and vest as he sawed away, his back to the fence, his shirt crawling towards his shoulders, exposing the bare skin. Tate loaded a big syringe to the muzzle with ice water. Crutcher filled and primed with powder a horse pistol he had borrowed from the arsenal. Noiselessly approaching, where Featherston was at work, they found an opportune crack in the fence, close to the unsuspecting victim, for the point of the syringe. At a signal, "bang" went the pistol, and "chug" went the water against Featherston's bare back. The effect was startling. Dropping his saw, Featherston fell to the ground, crying "murder, I am killed."

Other workmen ran up. The news spread that Featherston had been assassinated—shot from behind the fence. Crowds gathered. Doctors were summoned. Standing over the prostrate man, with scores now pressing around, all wild with excitement. One of the doctors asked him where he was shot. "Clear through the back, don't you see the blood?" he groaned in reply. Turning him over, the doctor said gruffly, "don't see any hole—don't see any blood—shirt and back wet with water."

Then the joke dawned on the crowd. They laughed, then whooped and yelled. Featherston got up. He was full of anger. He got a pistol. The planner of the joke was as good as dead if he was found him, but he never found out the perpetrators till years after, for Crutcher and Tate never talked until his good humor replaced the resentment.

Gen. Cerro Gordo Willmington brought home a dismounted canon from the Mexican war and placed it in the State House yard. For a long while it lay on the ground in the edge of the high, moist grass. One day, Tate and Crutcher went up to the arsenal, and, while Crutcher engaged the attention of Sam Gohins, the keeper. Tate stole a red sack full of powder.

Later, they bought forty or fifty yards of fuse from a quarry-man back of the cemetery. One three or four in number, with half dark night, whilst the town was a dozen of their negroes, had surprised, and only cats and dogs on round the melon patch with guns. Crutcher and Tate stole loaded, and met and dispersed the silently to the State House yard, enemy in fine form. Crutcher was loaded the old canon heavily with powder, then rammed and rammed it with sod and rags till his arms ached. Attaching the fuse to the "touch hole," they marched it to the gate, lit the end, and then fled to their room and to bed. After waiting a long while and no sound coming to their ears, they told something had gone wrong. Perhaps the fuse had gone out.

They got up, dressed, and started to the square. They had gone only a few steps when a tremendous explosion occurred. Every glass window within a square of the State House was shattered. People ran on the streets. Everybody was alarmed. Was it an earthquake? Had a meteor fallen? Crutcher surmised it might be the first blast of Gabriel's trumpet. He and Tate had joined the crowd and were innocently surising what the accident could be. The old canon had kicked over in the tall grass and disappeared, leaving no evidence of where the upward came from.

Next day, many farmers came to town to inquire about the terrible noise. The mystery was unexplained for many years.

Col. John N. Crutcher and Bill Jones were visiting a charming lady, who lived west of the city. Jones was monopolizing the young lady's company more than was pleasing to Crutcher. He was there nearly every night, well dressed, fine looking, talkative. The young lady smiled on him. Between Bill's home and the residence of his charmer, lay a big mud hole spanning the road. Crutcher knew that mud hole. He knew its depth. He also knew the nights when Bill would pass on the way to love and happiness. One night, after dark, he stretched a grape vine across the mud hole, from trees on either side, and just high enough to reach a man on horseback. Then he hitched his horse in a thicket to one side and lay down behind the fence and waited.

He had not long to wait, for love is no laggard. Bill had come along, riding fast and whistling, for his heart was light. The grape vine worked well, for the rider was swept off and into the mud. As he waded, swearing, towards where Crutcher lay, the latter's heart beat like a trip hammer for fear he would be discovered, but his concealment was secure, and as Bill returned home in sorry plight, Crutcher spent the evening until in the agreeable company of the bewitching damsel. His mirth was excessive, however, as he remembered the plight of the hero of the mud hole, and he was forced to explain that it had no kinship meaning for her own dear self.

Col. John Crutcher, afterward mayor and alcalde of Bellefonte, was also the hero of a watermelon fiasco or ambuscade. The town boys planned a raid by night on Sneed's six-acre watermelon patch, west of town. Crutcher, a country boy, then was employed to notify them when the melons were ripe and to pilot the party. Crutcher confidently let the Sneed's into the secret. They promised not to tell, but gathered guns and provided powder. On the night fixed, when the melons were ripe, Crutcher led the town raiders by a private path through a hemp field to the melon patch. The melons were big and plentiful. They were thumbing for the ripe ones. Suddenly "bang" went a gun from a fence corner. Crutcher fell, crying, "Oh, Lordy—oh Lordy!" The others ran in wild alarm. As they neared the fence, "bang" went a gun in their faces. They ran the other way, but whatever way they turned and ran, "bang" went a gun in front. Finally, they broke through the hemp field and in waded and de-

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Frankfort People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney trouble is that the disease is held before the sufferer realizes that it exists. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, faintness, soreness, hiccough, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in innumerable forms, gradually destroying health. Once the kidneys, with the certain and safe remedy, Dean's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Frankfort.

Col. J. C. Callis, of 571 Belmont Street, wife of W. C. Callis, banker, the Frankfort Citizen's Works, says: "I have the greatest faith in Dean's Kidney Pills for their treatment brought me into life. I had backache for years, and a severe attack of it when an attack occurred, especially if I overexerted myself in any way, aggravation of the aching was sure to follow. A positive proof of some disturbed action of the kidneys, perhaps, tried various remedies but found nothing that did me any permanent good. Reading an advertisement in our local papers about Dean's Kidney Pills I recurred to them, thinking that they might be of some service. According to this thought I went to J. W. Gayle's drug store and got a box. Their use proved that what people said about nothing in my neck censuring was true, and the trouble with the kidney condition was corrected. I thoroughly believe that my preparation which acts up to the representations made for it like Dean's Kidney Pills can not be too well known."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milligan Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

VAST IMPROVEMENT.

We can not refrain from again commanding the Capital Gas and Electric Light Co. for the great improvement in the street lights which they have so recently put up. In place of being one of the worst lighted cities in the State, this is now one of the best. The lights burn clear and undimmed straight along without any flickering, so characteristic of the old lights.

We deem this due to the company who are so often cursed instead of praised.

These are very pretty styles, and elegantly tailored. Made of Panama, Sicilian and latest Novelty Suitings.

MY OLD KENTUCKY HOME.

The sun shines bright on my old Kentucky home,
'Tis summer; the darkies are gay;
The corn top's ripe, and the meadow's in bloom,
While the birds make music all the day.
The moon follows us, down the long floor,
All merry, all happy and bright.
By'n hard times come a knocking at the door,
Then, my old Kentucky home, good-night.

Chorus:

Weep no more, my lady, oh, weep no more to-day;
And we'll sing me so for the old Kentucky home,
For the old Kentucky home, far away.

They hunt no more for the 'possum and the coon,
On the meadow, the hill, and the shore;
They sling no more by the glimmer of the moon
On the bench by the old cabin door.
The days go by like a shadow o'er the heart,
With sorrow where all was delight;
The love, the joy, the mirth, the darkies have to part;
Then, my old Kentucky home, good-night.

The head must haw, and the back must bend,
Wherever the dirkay may go.
A few more days and the trouble all will end
In the fields where the sugar canes grow.
A few more days for to tote the weary load—
No matter, 'twill be light;
A few more days we'll often see the road;
Then, my old Kentucky home, good night.

OVERCOATS OF WOLF HIDE WORK BY RANCHMEN OF THE NORTHWEST.

If those big wolf and coyote skin overcoats, such as are now being worn to Kansas City by northwestern stockmen and farmers could talk, many thrilling and interesting yarns would be added to hunting lore, says the Star. In the Dakotas, Nebraska, and Wyoming especially, where coats of this kind are a winter's necessity for men out of doors, trapping and killing wolves and coyotes for their skins is quite an industry and is followed with profit by hunters. Many of them are Indians who are skilled in the use of the needle and scissors and realize the full profit on the garments by making it themselves to the customer's order. The best wolf skin coats sell for $150 and none less than $100. The legs of the pelts can not be used for a large coat ten skins are required. Extreme care must be taken of the coats in summer, however, to keep the moth out of the fur. They are heavier than any sort of an ulster of cloth and remain rainproof even after days of exposure.

E. W. Hart, of Brock, Neb., who was at the Blossom House one night recently, had one of those coats with a story, or rather with twenty stories, for there was one attached to each of the many skins it was made up of.

"In not much of a hunter," said Mr. Hart, "and was six years in killing enough wolves to make this coat. It is a home-made affair and a bit rough on the edges, but good enough for a stockman. The skin from which the sleeves are made was obtained with difficulty. This wolf was the largest of the lot, a female, and half starved at the time I captured her. I jumped in among the hounds after she was down to keep them from tearing her throat, but before I could get a firm hold upon her jaws she slipped loose and fastened her teeth in my coat sleeve. I was compelled to let her go, shake her off and let the dogs again catch and kill her. I must have chased, shot at and tried to trap fifty of the beasts before I killed enough to make the coat. They are popular out our way and the greatest garment of their kind, but hard to get."

JUGGLING BRIDAL GIFTS.

A bride from the south entered, a few evenings ago, some friends, reports the New York Globe, who especially admired a beautiful sugar bowl among her wedding presents—"bridal gifts," as she called them, in the southern idiom.

"Whom is that from?" asked one who is intimate enough to make such an inquiry. The bride hesitated a moment.

"It's really hard to tell," she said finally. "It's partly from Aunt Caroline and partly from a girl in Colorado and partly from a gentleman in Jack's office."

"You see, Aunt Caroline sent me a dozen spoons, and they were the only spoons out of 11 dozen that weren't marked. My friend in Colorado sent an order on a store in Baltimore for anything I wanted to select, and the gentleman in Jack's office sent a carving set. There were two other carving sets, too."

"Nobody sent a sugar bowl and I wanted one worse than anything else. Aunt Caroline lives in Baltimore, you know, and her spoons were from the same store that had an order on from Colorado. So I just sent them the spoons and the sugar bowl of the same value. They wrote me that they didn't have any sugar bowls as cheap as that but were sending me four to select from at different prices."

"I wanted this sugar bowl, which was one of the four sent, so I made Jack take the carving set to the store where it was bought and get the money for it, and that made just enough to pay for the sugar bowl. Wasn't that fine?"

And all the women present declared the bride was a genius.

THINGS LOOK SQUALLY IN CHINA.

The situation, with reference to the foreign population in China, is in very strained condition and likely to produce trouble at any time. Already there have been riots in different points in the kingdom.

The U. S. authorities are acting with wisdom and discretion in sending troops to important points to protect American interests.

URGENT NEED FOR PASSAGE OF ANTI-CIGARETTE BILL.

We would most respectfully urge upon the Legislature the prompt passage of the anti-cigarette bill. This evil habit is rapidly growing and the necessity for the restriction is pressing. Hardly a paper is printed but there are several accounts of the death, or worse, of young men, who had bright prospects in life, but gave way to this abominable practice and became moral and mental wrecks.

MEETING OF BUSINESS MEN'S CLUB.

There was a large attendance at the Business Men's Club meeting, on Thursday night.

There were a number of subjects brought up and discussed. Among them were the following:

The necessity for a better system of street cleaning.

The establishment of stock yards for the sale of live stock.

The propriety of purchasing a lot for presentation to a furniture company, in consideration of such an institution being permanently located here, in view of the fact that the company now running in the prison are going to confine their business to making chairs.

FRANKFORT, FEB. 17, 1896

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY.

For the first time in the history of Kentucky, the Legislature paid tribute to the memory of President Lincoln on Monday last, which was his birthday.

Chief Justice J. P. Hobson, Prof. H. K. Taylor, of the Louisville Training School, Senator Ben Sewell and Lt. Gov. W. P. Thorne made appropriate addresses before the joint assembly.

There was a large crowd present to hear the addresses.

Both houses of the Legislature adjourned without transacting any business.

The House of Representatives, in which the meeting was held, was beautifully decorated, and a large picture of the martyr President was tastefully draped in black.

Thank God, the day has come when the passions of civil strife have so far subsided as to permit such a scene as that of Monday.

HERETIC CONSISTENCY:

It's funny how consistent (2) some people are. In the legislative districts of Louisville the most glaring and outrageous frauds we've perpetrated in order to elect R. presentatives, and the committee to investigate and strip none of these cases as a sample say that the outrages committed by the police were such as no self-respecting police board could overlook, no court or grand jury could dare condone, without perpetrating still further outrages upon the people, who had thus been disfranchised. Yet, when those cases are voted upon in the House, these men retain their seats.

Now for the reverse side. Irregularities of a minor nature, such as one of the election officers acting as clerk of the election (while the clerk, who is also charged with drinking, is temporarily away from his position) in Muhlenberg county, comes up, and away goes consistency, and the sitting member is ousted, and the man who was never Agony From Inherited Heart Disease.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Cured Me.

One person in every four has weak heart, it is being treated at a cost which becomes a great burden. Little extra strain from any cause is sufficient to bring this deadly malady, the most common cause of death. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure will tone up the heart's action, enrich and improve the circulation.

"My trouble began with catarrh and I have always suffered from it, caused the trouble I have had with my heart. I had the usual symptoms of sleeplessness, lost appetite, constipation, palpitation, pain in the heart, shortness of breath, etc., and I could not get rid of it. I went to see Dr. Miles and he was waiting about, who would bring on palpitation and bursting of the heart so severe that I could not have given him a moment's time. Never in sixteen years have I so much relief. I am now well and I thank Dr. Miles' Remedies for it. I think they are the greatest remedies on earth and are constantly recommending them to my friends." — Miss Edna CANTRELL, Waxahachie, Tex.

elected is given the seat. One member aptly put it: "We don't often get a chance at those fellow in Muhlenberg county, and now, when we can, let's swipe 'em." Other honorable (?) gentlemen hold their hands in horror over the awful outrage in Muhlenberg, while they remark about the Louisville cases. "Oh! Yes; there were outrages committed, but not enough to overcome the majority of the sitting member!" Notwithstanding the fact that, in one case, the deciding precinct was bodacious moved and a fake election held, while the legal officers were not present and no legal ballot box was used.

Oh! temporal! Oh! more! And why not stand straight and square to every wind that blows, and "how to the line, let the chips fall where they may?"

KENTUCKY STATE COLLEGE BOYS HERE.

On Monday morning the battalion of cadets from the Kentucky State College came here on a special train, upon invitation of the Legislature.

There were five companies of Infantry, a battery, and the college band, numbering in all about 250 men, together with most of the senior class and the faculty of the college. The soldiers made quite a handsome display as they marched down Broadway to Ann, up Ann to Main, down Main to St. Clair, down St. Clair to Wapping, down Wapping to Washington, in Washington to Broadway, east on Broadway to the Capitol grounds.

Under command of Maj. W. B. Burtt, U. S. A., they went through with quite a handsome drill in the Capitol grounds, which was highly complimented by all who witnessed the maneuvers.

At the conclusion of the drill the battalion marched to their special train and deposited their guns, and were then dismissed to witness the doings of the legislature and see the various sights of the city.

The large majority of the boys were served with lunch from their train.

At 4 p. m. the train returned to Lexington, not, however, without leaving behind quite a bunch of the boys, who had yielded to the charms of Frankfort's pretty girls, and were just a little late. Those left went up on the regular 4:30 L & N.

The whole affair was well managed and the display a very creditable one for all concerned.

INVOLUNTARY SANTA CLAUS.

One day last week Little Ben Rogers, son of Mr. Tom, P. Rogers, and Carolyn Chin, son of Hon. J. Morgan Chin, were playing about, a building being erected on Fourth street by Mr. Holt, Cheater, and climbed through the timbers up into the attic. A chimney had been completed to about the level of the posts and Ben sat down upon top of the wall with his feet dangling in the opening. Presently he lost his balance and slipped into the flue, but caught the top of the wall with his hands. He called to Cardie for help, which was promptly given, but in attempting to pull him up by the hands, Cardie pulled his gloves off and down the chimney Ben went like a stone. He landed safely in a fireplace at the bottom, a very much shaken up and frightened boy, but without injury save a little skin rubbed off in his rapid descent.

RESIGNED—APPOINTED.

Capt. C. W. Merchant, who has been night watchman at the U. S. Customhouse for many years, has resigned his position and will remove with his family to the farm which he recently purchased on the Louisville pike. Capt. Merchant has made a most capable and efficient officer, and retire with the best wishes of a host of warmly attached friends.

Mr. Jas. C. Sower has been selected to fill the vacancy caused by Capt. Merchant's resignation. He was a gallant soldier, and is a deserving gentleman. He will make an excellent officer. We congratulate him upon his appointment.

DO NOT DECEIVE YOURSELF.

Don't deceive yourself. If you have indigestion take Kodol Bypsopis Chinc. It will relieve you. Rev. W. E. Hocutt, South Mills, N. C., says: "I was troubled with chronic indigestion for several years, which are sometimes so severe as to cause heartburn, sour stomach, fluttering of my heart, and general depression of mind and body. My druggist recommended Kodol, and it has relieved me. I can now eat anything, and sleep soundly at night." Kodol relieves what you eat, makes the stomach sweet, Palatable, strengthening and affords quick relief. Sold by J. W. Gayle.

IN SELF-DEFENSE.

Major Hamm, editor and manager of the Intercolonial Engineer, who was recently attacked, four years ago, by Pitts, bought a box of Buckland's Arnica Salve, of which he says: "It cured me in ten days and no trouble since. Quickest healer of Burns, Scars, Cuts and Wounds. 25¢ at all drug stores."

A RARE TREAT.

The scenic equipment and mechanical effects Manager John A. Hillefeld has provided for the Imperial Stock Co. this season far exceeds that of any previous year, and for transportation of same a sixty-four baggage car is required. It should be of interest to patrons of the Capitol Theatre to learn that during the company's forthcoming engagement this entire outfit will be used and practically none of the house scenery, which, to many people is in the nature of an eyesore, will be brought into regulation in presenting the numerous plays in the repertoire. The opening play on Monday night will be Out of the Fold, and it is evident that the attendance will be large.

NEW BUILDING.

Mr. J. J. Brisban will soon commence the erection of a handsome two-story and attic brick residence on his lot on Third Avenue, between Shelby and Capitol Avenue. This will fill in the open space on that street, and will be a handsome improvement. So it goes right along. The old town is waking up and getting a move on herself.

The demand for houses is not half supplied.

Imperial Stock Co.—Second act "Out of the Fold."

IMPERIAL STOCK CO.

The general interest manifested in the approaching engagement of the Imperial Stock Co. at the Capitol Theatre augurs well for this popular attraction, and unless all indications fail, capacity houses will prove the rule throughout the engagement. An entirely new repertoire of plays will be given, and the engagement will open on Monday night with an elaborate production of "Out of the Fold."

Other plays that will be given during the week are: A Celebrated Case, The Rose of Killarney, The Woman Who Smiles, Over the Hills to the Poor House, The Red Cross Nurse, The Moonshiners, etc. The usual Saturday matinee will be played. Ladies' free tickets will be issued for Monday night.

"ISLE OF SPICE."

Miss Leslie Leigh, the prima donna of the "Isle of Spice" Co., occasionally finds a few leisure moments in the midst of her strenuous stage life for serious thought, and at such times devotes herself to epigrammatical output. The following are said to be some of her latest cynical utterances:

"The man who owns ten shares of Standard Oil stock never rails against trusts, neither does the theatregoer who sits with his wife in the front row object to the aigrette in her hair."

"The average press agent does not care to own the theatres he manages. He simply desires the same privileges as the oxen."

"Poverty and companionless disease are the only barriers that prevent a man entering the society of today."

"If it was as easy for a man to marry the woman that he wants to, it is for him to obtain a legal separation from the one he does not mate with, there would be fewer divorces."

"Society forgives the man who sneezes when he rises from the dinner table, but will not tolerate the misguided individual who drinks his chumpraine from a Burghundy glass."

"A point for those who wish to dine with epicures: Never praise the cook, rather your host's exquisite tastes in matters culinary. Miss Leigh will be seen here with 'The Isle of Spice,' which comes to Capitol Theatre in the near future."

All the heating balsams of the Norway pine are concentrated in Mr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Nature's own remedy for coughs and colds.

"ISLE OF SPICE."

"Since Aspasia charmed Pericles in ancient Greece, or perhaps, it might be better to say, since Adam loved Eve, women have been trying to please men," says Miss Muriel Martin, of the "Isle of Spice" Company, soon to be seen in this city.

"Isn't it surprising then, that in all these thousands of years they haven't made it better? There are really few girls that seem to realize what a man admires. I think it has been said before, but it is still true, that a woman's work is to please a man."

"They don't want to talk to a girl whose mind is filled with her gossips and millinery or those of others, nor do they like to hear that she has no room for interest in his affairs."

"They hope the man in whom they are interested will succeed in what he wishes to do, but beyond that, they are not expert in anything, excepting for him."

A man wants more than this from the girl of whom he makes a friend with matrimony ahead. She must sympathize with him and his ideals, and not only be understanding, but be able to talk to him and be understood."

"The simpering, gushing, frivolous girl that appears not to the average man. She appears too sensible; there seems to be too little of the girl in her for his taste in her nature. There are men who like what may be called the thoroughly serious-minded girl, but the most popular one is the happy medium, who can amuse, and own the mind of a man, and make him like a woman dear to a man's heart."

"A thing for girls to remember is that men prefers companionship to a pretty face. When he marries, a man inevitably decides on it a woman who were she a man, would be his best friend and closest companion."

At Capitol Theatre in the very near future.

CLIMATIC CURES.

The influence of climatic conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The patient can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning has made certain by German Syrup, so is a good way to get rid of the absorption that weakens each and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented by strong drinking of German Syrup. It is liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer climate, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those that take German Syrup. Trial of the 25¢ regular size, etc. At all drug-gists.

S. D. JOHNSON CO.,

FIRST ANNUAL STATE FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

Be Held at Frankfort, Ky., February 27th and 28th and March 1, '06. Under the Auspices of the State Department of Agriculture, Labor and Statistics—For the Development of Kentucky's Agricultural and Kindred Interests.

PROGRAMME.

The object of the State Farmers' Institute is to bring the farmers of the State into closer collaboration with each other and with the Department of Agriculture for their mutual benefit, to interchange ideas, to encourage legislation for the benefit of the farmers and to lift Kentucky to the front of agricultural states.

The Institute is to be the central body of farmers in the State, and it is to be made a permanent institution. The local clubs or institutes are to be brought into the fold, and they will be expected to send delegates to the State meetings to take part in the deliberations, and to present the needs of their respective counties. The State Farmers' Park is to be in conjunction with the State Department of Agriculture and will serve to bring the farmers and the Department into close contact with one another to the end that the farmers may be enabled to get direct and substantial benefits from it.

ORGANIZATION.

As soon as the delegates are assembled, it is the purpose to erect a permanent organization and elect officers as follows:

First Vice President.
Second Vice President.
Secretary.

Treasurer.

Each county shall have one vote on all questions of organization, but after the organization is effected the Institute may determine for itself the manner of voting on all proposition coming before it.

A Heavy Load to Carry.

Along with dyspepsia comes nervousness and general ill-health. Why? Because a large number of people permit the food to be poorly digested, and its products assimilated by the system. The food is cluttered with poisons which come from smoking and alcohol, and in turn the nerves are not fed on good red blood, and we see symptoms of nervousness, sleeplessness, and general breakdown. It is not hard work to over-exertion that does it, but poor stomach work. With poor, thin blood the body is not properly supplied with oxygen and grain, brittleness and consumption. Fortify the body at once with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. A remarkable combination of many roots without a particle of alcohol or dangerous habit-forming drugs.

Within bounds of extracts, from prominent physicians, containing every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will be mailed free to any address, request by post card or letter. Address: Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Many years active practice confirmed.

The value of the many native roots as medicinal agents and he went to great expense, both in time and money, to perfect and obtain particular processes for preparing them so that they are safe for tonic, alterative and rebuilding agents. The enormous popularity of "Golden Medical Discovery" has led him to scientific commanding and to the actual medicinal value of its ingredients. The publication of the name of the ingredients and the amount of each root gives full assurance of its non-alcoholic character and removes all objection to the use of an unknown or secret remedy.

It is a popular medicine, not one to one another. This fact puts it in a class all by itself, bearing in mind it does upon every body the stamp of "Good Honesty," in the full list of its ingredients.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" cures, weak stomach, Indigestion, dyspepsia, tonic liver and kidneys, ulcer of stomach and bowels and all catarrhal affections no matter what parts or organs may be affected. It is a safe medicine. Pleasant Pellets are the original little liver pills, first put up 40 years ago. They regulate and invigorate, stomach, liver and bowels. Much inferior, but never equalled. Super-coated and easy to take as candy. One to three a dose.

REPRESENTATION.

While each county will have one vote in the matter of organization, it is urged that every county send as many delegates as possible. It is very important to the agricultural interests of the State that this, the first State Institute, should be a signal success.

PROGRAMME.

While the programme has not yet been completed, some of the most prominent men in the country have been invited to participate and it can confidently be said that it will be one of the most interesting programmes ever carried out in this State. Among those invited are Prof. J. K. Patterson, of the Illinois University; Dr. Cyril G. Hawkins, of Illinois University; P. G. Holden, of Iowa; Joseph E. Wing, of Ohio; Gifford Pinchot, head of the National Department of Forestry; Prof. J. K. Patterson, of the State Experiment Station; Prof. M. A. Scovell, Director of the State Experiment Station; Prof. H. Garman, State Entomologist and other men of national reputation, including a prominent road expert.

Government officials will be invited to deliver the address of welcome for the State and Mayor E. E. Hume will deliver the address of welcome for Frankfort. Programs will be sent out as soon as completed.

REDUCED RATES.

Application has been made for reduced rates on all railroads in the State. Delegates are requested to take certificates from agents in order that they may get the advantage of reduced rates returning.

ENTERTAINMENT.

The Frankfort Business Men's Club will entertain the delegates at a banquet and other entertainment will be provided, including a visit to the New Capitol Site. The Business Men's Club will entertain the speakers and information which will look after the comfort of the delegates and guests and will provide badges for all delegates. The Legislature will still be in session and they will be invited to attend the sessions. In a word, the State will feel that the agricultural interests of the State are on trial and should see to it that determined interested men are sent as delegates. Respectfully,

HUBERT VREELAND,
Commissioner.

BUSINESS CHANGES.

Mr. Thos. E. Kenney has purchased the interest of his brother, Mr. O. C. Kenney, in the big sawmill and lumber business, and will continue it.

KENTUCKY'S INTEREST IN IMMIGRATION.

Senator Jas. B. McCrory's bill now pending in the Senate of the United States, to regulate immigration, has been introduced for Kentucky, not only because it is the solution offered by one of the State's Senators to a question of great national importance, but because Kentucky has had a short time past proposed this subject.

The measures proposed by Senator McCrory increases the restriction upon undesirable immigrants and increases the facilities by which States with representatives at Washington can restrain from entering great masses of immigrants that are pouring into the country, whatever they may need of the better class of agricultural and industrial laborers, and protects themselves against foreign immigrants of an undesirable kind.

The first of these things Senator McCrory proposes to do by increasing the tax on immigrants from two to five dollars by reason of the fact of excluded immigrants, and by increasing the efficiency of the inspection service for enforcing this exclusion. The other end is to be promoted by authorizing and directing the Commissioner general of immigration to maintain in connection with each immigrant station a bureau which shall furnish information as to the resources, products, manufactures, climate, soil, prices, cost of living, of the States and Territory, the route of travel thereto and the cost of transportation, the opportunities for employment in each State and Territory in the various skilled and unskilled occupations, and compare with the rates of wages and the cost of living. To the same end and this is of special interest in view of pending legislation in Kentucky—Senator McCrory's bill provides that no immigrant shall strike or remain in any State or territory longer than at any immigrant station of the United States, the Commissioner general of immigration shall provide such agent with suitable quarters, permit him to have access to all immigrants, give him aid so far as possible.

It is important that the United States should adopt stringent measures for the exclusion of undesirable immigrants, in view of the accumulated evidence that an organized effort is being made to unload a vastly greater number than usual of such immigrants on this country. It is likewise especially important to Kentucky that these people should not succeed in taking their chances, without effort, to protect or help itself, when other States are providing official representatives at immigrant ports. If Kentucky does nothing, it will not only expose its own immigrants, such as are needed on our farms and in our factories, to be diverted to States that have the enterprise to go after them, but it will be likely to receive back what it wants of the undesirables, since it is to some extent up to an organized effort to send these undesirable people to the South, while the West and Northwest get the pick of the thrifty Germans, Scandinavians, etc.

This immigration question is an important one and a practical one. A step toward putting Kentucky in position to derive some advantage from the provisions of Senator McCrory's bill is to have a bill introduced in Frankfort by Senator Newman. This bill provides for a commission which shall, among other things, look after the immigration interests of the State. It does not go as far as some would like to have it go, but in the right direction and would put Kentucky in a better position, both for securing their influx of thrifty population, for which there is such a demand in many parts of the State, and for helping to screen out the kind of immigration that the State does not want. It provides also for supplying needed information to investors and home-seekers from other States.

The most manifested in the subject of immigration at the State Development Convention, held in Louisville in October, 1905, leaves no doubt of the importance attached to this matter in Kentucky. The Convention referred the matter to a committee of three, composed of three delegates from outside the city of Louisville, met to consider matters of concern to the State. This Convention asked of the Legislature the enactment of some measure establishing a State Bureau of Immigration and Information. The bill introduced by Senator Newman would in effect supply such a Bureau in an economical and practical way.
